When you're thinking of moving house, you naturally consider the accommodation.

But isn't there more to it than that?

The foundations, for instance.

No matter how well put together the inside is, it's what it's built on that counts in the end.

The same goes for moving caravans.

Obviously, you'll consider a C.I. conversion. After all, they're one of the best.

Now, we believe, they're even better.

They're converting Volkswagens. Into the new C.I. Volkswagen Kamper.

They're everything you'd expect from a C.I. conversion but based on the highly successful Volkswagen Transporter.

And more motor caravans have been built on Volkswagens than any other conversion in the world.

You can't build on a more solid foundation than that.
