Kamper II

Kamper II

The original Kamper based on Britain's best-selling motor caravan base — the Volkswagen Transporter Kombi — was hailed by the Press in euphoric terms.

Now the Kamper Mark II takes the original and highly successful concept of a true dual-purpose vehicle, equipped for either summer or winter use, a further great step forward with a vast number of improvements including superb new interior decor, new lighter furniture, improved curtain location, thicker upper bed mattress, more comprehensive kitchen facilities, increased storage space, detail improvements to the elevating roof and a much simplified method of converting the rear seat to a double bed.

The Kamper is the first Volkswagen conversion in the world to have a rigid, double-skinned and insulated elevating roof (patent applied for) that not only provides security but also helps protect against extremes of heat and cold, condensation, and avoids the "wind flap" associated with fabric elevating roofs. The roof is easily elevated with assistance from gas-filled struts, and a roof light with built-in flyscreen provides variable ventilation. For even greater ventilation in hot weather, or for superior viewing at sporting events, one of the sides can be folded away, without affecting the stability of the roof, to provide your own private grandstand. The roof locks down automatically when lowered.

The unique design of the Kamper does not just stop at roof level though — a new and easy method of converting the rear bench seat to a 6ft. 1in. by 4ft. double bed substantially increases the amount of space inside the vehicle in the daytime layout. This seat is complemented by a multi-position, sliding, revolving and reclining seat behind the front passenger seat which converts to a single or double rear-facing seat for dining or a single forward-facing seat for travelling. In all, the Kamper can seat up to six adults in forward-facing seats.

The Kamper furniture is finished in a very attractive "wipe clean" wood-grained laminate with heat-resistant worktops that fold away to reveal the cooker, sink, drainer, cutlery storage and ladies' vanity unit — complete with a mirror!

All windows are fully curtained and are retained at the bottom with velcro strips for added privacy.

The caravan body sides are insulated up to window level and the entire floor, including the cab, is carpeted. This results in the Kamper being exceptionally well insulated against both temperature change and noise.

Other standard features include a slide opening window above the cooker, dual gas/12 volt refrigerator, integral stainless steel sink and cooker unit with grill, extensive storage facilities in wardrobe, cupboards, lockers and drawers, including a compartment designed to take an optional flushing toilet. Storage space is provided for two gas bottles, and a built-in 12 gallon (54.5 litres) water tank is fitted complete with an exterior lockable filler cap.

The complete rear drawer storage unit over the engine simply lifts out for easy servicing, and a free-standing table, which stores behind the rear seat when not in use, can be used outside for meals in the open air. A roof rack above the cab is also standard equipment.

Finally, a safe "blown air" heating system, second battery and control panel incorporating a battery charger, battery condition indicator and fuses is offered as a complete optional extra pack. The heater is operated simply by turning on the gas at the bottle and depressing an electric switch. The heater unit and its air intake and exhaust are safely fitted outside the living area of the vehicle.

The Kamper Mark II offers the best of all worlds — a roomy estate car in the week and a comprehensively equipped and insulated motor caravan for weekends and holidays which will seat six people in forward-facing seats and sleep four adults in comfort and privacy in two upholstered double beds.

We think it's the best-ever Volkswagen caravan conversion — but prove it for yourself at your Volkswagen motor caravan dealer now!
